The two boys are ready any time to listen to dad, who started flying five years before they were born. Captain Randall began commercial flying in 1928, and his service with the airline dates from 1937, when he flew one of the smaller companies which amalgamated later to form Canadian Pacific Airlines.

Jarrow News

Mr. and Mrs. N. Bragg and family are spending their holiday at the coast.

The W.A. will meet at the home of Mrs. Mike Orachecki on Tuesday, August 12. Hostesses, Mrs. Stan Bridgeman, and Mrs. G. Levis. Everyone welcome.

Stan and Andrew Orachecki spent the holiday week-end at their home. They were accompanied by their friend George Fischer.

Considerable damage was done by hail last Friday p.m. in the Battas district. Those sustaining the greatest damage were V. Carter, Earl Burr, K. B. Lingley, V. Lindberg, S. Bridgeman, Ralph Mark and E. Bruhaug.

Mr. and Mrs. Steve Walker and family of Edmonton visited with the Meakins families over the week-end.

Miss Verla Lind and Albert Wolda motored down from the city during the week-end and visited with relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Gibson and Mrs. G. Johnson of Edmonton spent the long week-end at the R. Mark home.

Mrs. K. Sonoff of Jasper is a visitor at the C. Sonoff home.

On Monday afternoon a shower was held in the Jarow hall for Miss Verla Lind, a bride elect for the month. The hall was attractively decorated with pink and white streamers and white bells. A few contests and games were played. Mrs. Beer favored all with a solo. An attractively decorated wagon pulled by Misses Pat and Marilyn Matthews was presented to the bride. After opening the gifts, Verla, in a few well chosen words, thanked everyone for the lovely and useful gifts. A bounteous lunch brought the pleasant afternoon to a close.

Wedding Bells

JACKSON — ARCHIBALD

Two of Irma's best known families were joined on July 23 when Lorna Grace, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Archibald, became the bride of Edward Roe, second son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Jackson. The ceremony was performed in the United Church, by Rev. H. W. Ingalls, under an arch of bells, roses and streamers.

The bride, entering the church with her father, was lovely in a gown of nylon net over satin, with lace bodice and bodice, to which the full skirt was gathered. On the bodice was a design worked in sequins and beads. A lace ruffle at the shoulder surmounted the lily-point sleeves. Her finger-tip veil fell from a coronet of pearls and sequins. The white of the bridal gown was accentuated by a bouquet of red roses. The bride's only jewelry was a three-strand pearl necklace, gift of the groom.

The four sisters of the bride acted as attendants with little Velma Elliot as flower girl. Jennine as maid of honor, was gowned in blue taffeta which featured shirred scallops at the neck and shoulders. The very full skirt hung from a shirred hip-line. Vivian chose daffodil taffeta with light bodice and full skirt. The lace neck line featured an off-the-shoulder effect with ruffles and puff sleeves. Colleen wore blue taffeta similar in style to Vivian's. It displayed puff sleeves and tiny leaf-covered buttons from neck line to waist. Irene's gown was of blue-pink taffeta. Three rows of tucks formed the sleeves and neck line, and were repeated at the hip line of the full skirt. The bridesmaid's ensembles were completed by matching veils and floral coronets. Each carried a nosegay of summer flowers. The flower girl was dainty in white jersey, with red roses.

Mr. Jack MacKay, the groom's brothers, Albert and Arthur Jackson, and Mr. Hugh Tomlinson supported the groom. The guests were ushered to their seats by Mr. G. H. Tomlinson, and the bride's brother Almon. The wedding music was played by Mrs. Bert Long. During the signing of the register the bride's sister Colleen and Irene, sang "I Love You Truly."

Following the ceremony a reception was held in Hedley's Hall for some two hundred and seventy five relatives and friends. To receive the guests, the bride's mother wore mauve crepe with lace bodice. Her accessories were gray with a corsage of red roses. The groom's mother chose nylon, printed with black on lime green. Her accessories were white and green with a corsage of red roses. Mrs. Peterson, the grandmother of the bride, wore printed blue nylon and corsage of pink roses.

The bride's table was laid with lace and centred by a four-tiered wedding cake, flanked by vases of sweet peas. Mr. A. H. Gunn proposed the toast to the bride, to which the groom fittingly responded. A toast to the parents of the bride and groom followed. During the reception several congratulatory telegrams were read by Mr. Jack MacKay.

Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. J. Peterson, Miss J. Saville, Miss L. Ramsay, Mr. S. Kennedy and Miss V. Stockton, of Edmonton; Mrs. L. Stewart, Mr. L. McLeod, Mr. and Mrs. C. Wilbraham, Mr. and Mrs. S. Murray, Mrs. T. Shaw, Mr. and Mrs. A. Myggland of Wainwright; Mr. and Mrs. H. Bouck and family, and Mr. and Mrs. P. Smale of Heath; Mr. and Mrs. G. Pugh of Hope Valley; Mr. and Mrs. G. Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. H. Swanson, Mr. and Mrs. J. Tindall and Miss L. White of Sedgewick.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Harding and Dennis, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Armitage and Bill of Kinsella; Mr. Aslam A. Khan and Mr. S. Azam of Pakistan.

In the evening a large gathering enjoyed the hospitality of the bride and groom at a dance in Kiefer's Hall. The bride's travelling costume was a blue suit of material the same as that worn by the groom. Her accessories were gray and her corsage was of red roses. After a honeymoon at Jasper, the happy couple are at home on their farm south of Irma.

Easterly Echoes

Miss Irene Dootson has been home from the Viking hospital, where she is employed, for a few days holiday.

Mary Dootson underwent a tonsillectomy in the Wainwright hospital this week. She was to be home on Wednesday.

Miss Joy Enger was an Edmonton visitor for a few days.

Hail took a sweep thru part of the Roseberry and east district on Friday night last. Some of the damage reported to be 75 per cent.

The next meeting of the United Church Men's Club will be held on Tuesday, August 12 in the Church Parlor at 8 p.m.

Farm Management

MODERN FARMING is a complicated business and one which requires not only a knowledge of growing crops, but also of the intricate problems of farm management. The successful farmer today must understand complicated farm machinery, have a grasp of marketing and other economic conditions which affect agriculture and be able to deal with labour problems. During the last ten years scarcity of farm labour has been a cause of concern in most parts of Canada. Due at first to the shortage of manpower during the war and later to the demands for labour created by Canadian industrial expansion, the lack of farm help has made it necessary for the farmer to pay steadily increasing wages or to mechanize his farm.

More Machines Are Now Used

"Many farmers have taken the latter course and farm mechanization has increased considerably in Canada in the last decade. This has necessitated large capital outlays and also decisions as to the amount of machinery required for the individual farmer's needs. Farmers today must also study production costs and decide which crops of what livestock bring him the best returns on his investment and labour. Scientific developments have benefited the farmer but have also placed on him added responsibility in applying scientific knowledge to his work.

Farm Problems Are Discussed

Agriculture is Canada's most important primary industry. It employs about 25 per cent. of the gainfully occupied people and agricultural products are among the chief exports from Canada each year. Recently farm economists from the four western provinces met at the University of Alberta, Edmonton, to discuss economic problems affecting the farmer and discussions covered a wide variety of subjects related to the business side of farm operation. It is clear that this has become increasingly important in recent years and that the successful farmer is now concerned not only with his land and livestock but with economic problems which require skill and foresight.

Ask Hay Fever Sufferers To Take Note Books With Them On Their Vacations

OTTAWA.—The federal government travel bureau asked hay fever sufferers to pack note books with them on their vacations in Canada this year. The bureau wants the victims of pesky ragweed pollen to jot down every area where they get an attack of "sniffles," and mail the information to the department of agriculture.

The information is sought by the bureau in a continuation of its efforts to pinpoint vacation areas in Canada where hay fever sufferers can enjoy relief.

The bureau has already issued a pamphlet giving general areas which are relatively free from ragweed. However, the bureau says its information on ragweed pollen distribution is by no means complete.

"There are gaps in our knowledge of ragweed and ragweed pollen distribution," the bureau said. "Anyone with observations to offer which may help to clarify, formation is asked to communicate with the Division of Botany and Plant Pathology, Department of Agriculture, Science Service, Ottawa.

"For example, a visitor to Canada during the ragweed season might care to advise on his reaction at the vacation area he visits. This type of information would be of great assistance to prospective tourists who are also hay fever sufferers."

The bureau's pamphlet on ragweed distribution says there are many Canadian "havens" for the 2,000,000 hay fever victims in the United States and their 100,000 fellow sufferers in Canada.

The Rocky Mountain area of Western Canada is one of the "safest" vacation spots for hay fever victims in this country. Ragweeds are rare plants in British Columbia and their pollen adds little to the airborne total.

Ragweed pollen is virtually nonexistent at Banff and Lake Louise in Alberta. Nearly all sections of the province, with the possible exception of the southeast, are free of the noxious weed. The ragweed plant is rarely found in Saskatchewan, except in the extreme south areas, but is more common throughout Manitoba. However, the two big tourist attractions in Manitoba, Riding Mountain National Park, and the northern fishing resorts, are relatively free of the weed.

The pollen free area of Ontario runs north of a line from Parry Sound to Penbrooke. The holiday resorts in the Muskoka Lakes district and Algonquin Park are also free of the plant.

The area around Lake Nipissing is infested with the weed as well as the greater part of Southern Ontario, including many of the big cities. Ragweed pollen is at its highest incidence in the west.

TIME WELL SPENT — Fortunately repairing fences on the average farm is not the problem it is for this veteran British Columbia ranger who supervises some 500 miles of fencing. But even on the smallest farm a check on fences is time well spent. Straying livestock—often with a head start—can waste a lot of time being rounded up much more than mending a wire or replacing a fence post.—National Film Board Photo.

Doctor Outlines Eight Rules To Combat Poliomyelitis

TORONTO.—Dr. Crawford Anglin of Toronto says the relative seriousness of poliomyelitis has been over-emphasized.

Writing in Health Magazine, official publication of the Health League of Canada, Dr. Crawford says that severe paralysis results from the disease only when warning signs are disregarded. Fatigue, he notes, apparently increases the severity of the disease.

Since no specific method of polio prevention is available he outlined eight, common-sense rules to follow in combating the disease.

1. Minor illness or fever during the polio season should be treated by bed rest and isolation.

2. Excessive physical strain and unnecessary travel should be avoided.

3. Water which might be contaminated by sewage should be avoided.

4. Files should be suppressed and food should be protected from fly contamination. All fresh fruit should be washed.

5. All except urgent nose or throat operations and dental extractions should be postponed.

6. If a case develops in a summer camp now children should not be admitted and those in the camp should be isolated.

7. Attendance of children at fairs, theatres and swimming pools should be discouraged.

8. In all events hysteria and panic should be avoided.

Recipe

PARTY CHEESES

Savory hot morsels guests will enjoy—cleverly inexpensive, too.

3 cups one-third fat butter, flour or 2 1/2 cups one-third fat all-purpose flour

5/8 teaspoon Magic Baking Powder

1/2 teaspoon salt

1/2 cup chilled shortening

1 egg, well beaten

1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

1 teaspoon prepared mustard

1/2 cup tomato ketchup

2 tablespoons shredded onion

1/2 cup (about) milk

48 1/2-inch cubes Ingersoll processed cheese

Grease cookie sheets.

Preheat oven to 400 deg. (hot).

Mix and sift once, then sift into a bowl, the flour, Magic Baking Powder and salt.

Cut in shortening finely.

Combine well-beaten egg, Worcestershire sauce, prepared mustard, ketchup, onion and milk.

Make a well in the flour mixture and add liquid; mix lightly with a fork, adding milk if necessary, to make a soft dough.

Knead for 10 seconds on lightly-floured baking board. Roll out into a 14-inch square and cut dough into 2-inch squares.

Place a cube of cheese in the centre of each square of dough.

Moisten edges of each square, draw corners together over cheese and seal edges.

Arrange, well apart, on prepared cookie sheets.

Bake in preheated oven about 12 minutes.

Serve piping hot.

Yield: 48 Party Cheeses.

Coyote Becoming Like Bear Awaiting Treats From Motorists

(By The Canadian Press)

Black bears, a grizzly bear on occasion, moose, red deer and elk are more or less taken for granted as visitors in Banff, Jasper and other Rocky Mountain centres. After all Canada is their native land and the creatures of the wilderness, theoretically at least, have a right to wander at will.

But even Banff folk have been more than a trifle surprised recently to see a coyote squatting patiently by a roadside near town, and at the same old stand, awaiting motorists who produce chocolate bars, cookies, and other delicacies. This self-elected member of the clan of mendicant bears declines to let brain monopolize the business. He has won a lot of friends by his gentleness.

Suburban Toronto is currently seeing a mild invasion by raccoons. One of the ring-tailed fellows visited the writer's garden and goldfish pool the other day. Deserted by their mother, four baby raccoons were found atop a cold stove in a gospel hall. Residents of some parts of suburban Rosedale and Hogg's Hollow, report raccoons as "common". Garbage cans in other suburbs have been raided by the animals.

Happiest of all the memories of this Toronto observer of wildlife was a magnificent golden eagle, flying low over a valley just beyond the city limits. Even in the Canadian Rockies where such a sight is not uncommon, the close-up view has always eluded observation to some extent. But the Toronto visitor, flying west, was flying so low that the very hues of the sunset, reflected on the eagle's plumage, could be seen plainly without binoculars.

Well, the Canadian roosebush that grows so near to tree size that it may reach a height of 12 feet at its tip and at shoulder height it may be close to 15 feet wide. A conservative estimate would be that it bears 500 creamy-yellow roses of exquisite fragrance.

It is a hybrid-rugosa rose named Agnes. It is a creation of the Ottawa Experimental Farm, and because of its extreme hardiness and post-resistant qualities should be more widely known and more widely planted.

Nor should this planting be confined to gardens, for it is admirably adapted for naturalizing at the fringe of farm woodlots or for roadside decoration as it has been so successfully used to adorn sections of the beautiful river road, bordering the Niagara River from Niagara-on-the-Lake to Fort Erie.

Just how far its range could be extended across Canada has not been learned. Inquiries to the Experimental Farm receive prompt and courteous attention.

Every true naturalist is interested in making the roadside scene in Canada more attractive. Hybrid-rugosa Agnes, with its glorious, if brief period of bloom and fragrance, is one of the better ways of achieving that aim.

During every 24 hours all the blood in the average person goes through his lungs 2,000 times.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

Minerva and the Lilliputians

By ELAINE FRANKS

Being a Baby Sitter
Would be Wonderful.

MINERVA MILLER sat in her dowdy rented room, reviewing the past three weeks since poor papa (and his annuity) had passed away. She needed a job, but, so far, her sixty years and fragile air had brought defeat. Why, I can't even be a cleaning woman, she thought ruefully. Yet there was only a dollar and twenty cents to last until her tiny monthly cheque arrived.

But loneliness was worse than hunger, she decided, staring out at the bleak sky. Until now, she had had papa to care for, and no matter how irascible he might be, thundering complaints were preferable to this absolute silence. It was thirty-five years since papa, having lost most of the Miller money in his investments, had taken to bed with a self-diagnosed bad heart, and proceeded to absorb Minerva completely. Only once had Minerva been briefly angered by this paternal tyranny.

That was when he called Joe Cuven's worthless and made her break their engagement. Joe had been successful in business and in siring a large family. That made Minerva envious. Always she had loved children. Crinkly babies, bold little boys, solemn young misses. If it were summer, she thought, I could watch the toddlers in the park and forget my worries. Months of sitting in this dreary room. But it had been kind of the mortgage company to find a place for her when they took the house for delinquent payments. And it's no good brooding, she thought, jumping up.

It was blustery outdoors and by the time she had pushed across the bridge, she was cold. Gratefully she stepped into the study library, going to the reading table with its racks of newspapers. Each day it came as a pleasant surprise that she could read three papers in their entirety. Papa had a habit of cutting out numerous items, and as he saw the paper first, she gleaned only matches of the day's news.

She opened a paper to the want-ad section. Please, she prayed, let there be something for me to do. But a discussion between two young matrons nearby drew her attention. "You why they want to have that party had to break a dinner date Saturday because our sister decided to go to a dance at the last minute?" one was saying.

"High school girls aren't practical. I've told you a thousand times. Week-days they're in school and week-ends they want to have fun. But all the older women are sewed up with iron-tight contracts. At seventy-five cents an hour, instead of twenty-five."

"Ladies," Miss Arben, the librarian, muttered. "Quiet, please."

Miss Arben sat dumbfounded. Had they meant what she thought? There was one way to find out. Forcing down her shyness, she walked over to the girls. "What is a sister?" she asked faintly.

Miss Arben sniffed. "That's all they talk about these days. It's some one who says what the children while the parents are out."

"Don't you have to have special training in baby care?" Minerva gasped.

"I should say not," Miss Arben replied. "All they want is someone in the house while they run around to parties."

It seemed too good to be true. "Imagine me being allowed to take care of children and getting twenty-five cents an hour," Minerva cried. "Don't be crazy. Charge seventy-five. You heard..."

"Oh, I couldn't," Minerva protested.

"You'll charge at least fifty," Miss Arben interrupted. She patted Minerva's hand gently. "You have such a kind face. I'll be glad to recommend you. Mothers are always asking me if I know a good sitter and I can line you up steady. All the children you want."

Minerva knew she was going to cry. It was awful knowing a fool of herself in front of Miss Arben who was suddenly so friendly, but there was no controlling the tears. More than the money it would mean to buy sufficient food was the fact that she, Minerva Miller, would be feeding and washing chubby children, even holding them on her knee as she had so longed to. Being a baby sitter would be wonderful, she thought, and smiled through her tears.

Air Conditioning
For Passenger Cars

DETROIT—General Motors announced the perfection of an air conditioning system for passenger cars.

President C. E. Wilson said the unit will be made available optionally on equipment on the 1953 model Oldsmobile and Cadillac cars.

Wilson said the unit consists of a rotary compressor mounted on the engine and a sealed refrigeration mechanism using non-toxic freon mounted in the luggage compartment.

RETURNING OFFICER
LOSES WEIGHT

REGINA—Politicians aren't the only ones who lose weight during an election campaign. Regina Returning Officer Calvin Martin climbed on the scales after the Saskatchewan general election and found he had lost 15 pounds in six weeks.

MANITOBA 82 YEARS OLD

WINNIPEG—Manitoba on July 15th was 82 years old. Since becoming the fifth member of the confederation family on July 15, 1870, the province has grown in area from 13,920 square miles to 219,723. Population has increased from an estimated 11,963 to 776,541.

B.C. Fruit
Crop Greater
This Year

OTTAWA—All B.C. fruit crops will be considerably greater this year than in 1951, Dominion bureau of statistics reports.

The B.C. apple crop is expected to exceed last year's by about 1,700,000 bushels, but will be smaller than in 1949 or 1950. Ontario and Quebec expected smaller crops than in 1951, but an increase is expected in Nova Scotia.

Malintosh apples will be in light yield in Ontario but are expected to yield well in B.C.

Large total crops of soft tree fruits are expected in Canada, with B.C. showing increased production while Ontario remains about the same as 1951.

The B.C. strawberry crop will total about 9,510,000 quarts as compared to 7,150,000 quarts last year, while raspberries will yield 9,517,000 quarts as against 8,065,000 in 1951.

New Brunswick will have a greater strawberry crop than last year, but raspberries there suffered winter injury with the result the crop will be much smaller than 1951.

The Ontario strawberry crop has been reduced by dry weather and it is expected the raspberry crop will show a decrease. The Quebec strawberry harvest is almost complete in the Montreal area and is under way in lower Quebec.

Funny and Otherwise

"I don't know whether I ought to recognize him in the city or not. Our acquaintance at the seaside was very slight."

"But you promised to marry him, didn't you?"

"Yes, but that was all."

No need worrying about finding your station in life. Sooner or later somebody's bound to tell you where to get off.

Girl (in expensive restaurant): "Why do you like the Hawaiian girls better than me?"

Sailor: "Because they would rather dance than eat!"

A Hollywood producer was filming a Biblical scene. Things were not going too well, and he raved and stormed about the studio.

"Listen to me, you guys!" he shouted. "I'm paying a thousand dollars a day for this sound apparatus and I mean to get my money's worth. When those Ten Commandments are broken I want to hear 'em break! Get me!"

"How on earth do you manage to save money?"

"I make it just a little faster than my wife can spend it."

"Is Jack concealed?"

"Concealed! Why, he joined the Navy to let the world see him."

"Have you any good after-shave lotion?"

"Yes. Here's a number that drives girls crazy. It smells like money."

She: "You're the nicest boy I've ever met."

He: "Tell that to the marines."

She: "I have — to dozens of them."

400 Become Members E. B. Eddy 25-Year Club

Four men who have piled up a total of 223 years of service were among 400 who received gold watches, gold pins and membership certificates as the E. B. Eddy Company inaugurated its Quarter Century Club recently at Hull, Que. The 400 original members represented more than 13,000 years of employment in the firm's fine and specialty paper mills at Hull and Ottawa. Front row, from left—W. J. Kane (50 years); J. F. Taylor, vice-president (71 years), believed a Canadian long-services record; Elie Gration and William J. Mills (51 years each). Back row, from left—W. S. Kidd, president (also a 25-year man), and A. Welch, general manager.

WESTERN

Big Effort

ESTHER, Sask. — Four hunters armed, with sticks and a lot of miscellaneous equipment, trailed what they thought was a lynx to a lonely badger hole. But the animal they flushed out of the hole turned out to be a house cat.

Eliminates Pests

RED DEER, Alta. — More than 19,000 crows and magpies were destroyed in this year's anti-predator campaign of the Red Deer Fish and Game Association.

Mennonite Conference

GRETNIA, Man. — Nearly 3,000 persons from 46 churches in Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia gathered here recently for the 50th annual Mennonite Conference of Canada. Gretnia is 65 miles south of Winnipeg.

Women Fined for Flowers

HOPE, B.C. — Two women were fined $5 and costs under the British Columbia Dogwood and Rhododendron Protection act for picking Rhododendrons in 30,000-acre Manning park near here. Mrs. M. Hildock and Mrs. D. Bennett both pleaded guilty in magistrate's court.

Trapper Feeding
Thirteen Baby
Beavers by Bottle

HEINENBERG, Alta. — Even wild animals nowadays are hitting the bottle. Sid Avery of Heinsberg has the daily chore of bottle-feeding 13 baby beaver.

Trapping beaver in Telegraph Lake this spring Avery discovered that two animals trapped were young mothers still suckling young. He rounded up the young "kits" and brought them home.

Avery will "wet-nurse" the young shavers until they are big enough to fend for themselves, when game guardians will move them to their natural habitat.

Yes, Sir . . . I'm for the Alberta Wheat Pool

1. Because Alberta Pool Elevators give effective service and protection to all.
2. Because Alberta Pool Elevators are operating at cost and excess earnings are returned to member patrons. Over the years such patrons have received over $5 million in cash and nearly $6 million in reserves. Ownership rests with the reserves.
3. Because Alberta Wheat Pool and Pool Elevators are owned by many thousands of Alberta farmers who have invested close to $8.5 million in this great enterprise. Pool members can safeguard this investment by delivering all their grain to Pool Elevators. A large volume of deliveries means low cost of operation.
4. Because the Wheat Pools are mainly responsible in keeping down the cost of handling grain. Such costs are remarkably low, probably the lowest in the world. This is a tribute to the effectiveness of farmer co-operation.
5. Because the business operations of the Alberta Wheat Pool are an "open book." Pool members may obtain the fullest information concerning the operations of their organization through their elected delegates and directors.
6. Because the co-operative principle of "each for all and all for each" is the co-operative ideal which aims at spreading economic justice throughout the nation and throughout the world.
7. Because it is of vital importance to Alberta grain producers that a strong co-operative elevator system should flourish in this province. It is essential that such an elevator system should be under the control of Alberta grain producers—the men who are actually following the occupation of farming.
8. Because Alberta Wheat Pool is the only organization in Alberta which meets these requirements.
